Self sufficiency in natural gas

1020. SHRIMATI PREMA CARIAPPA: Will the Minister of PETROLEUM AND NATURAL GAS be pleased to state:

(a) whether India's production of natural gas is adequate to meet its domestic requirement;

(b) if not, the reasons therefor; and

(c) the steps taken to achieve the self sufficiency in this field?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF PETROLEUM AND NATURAL GAS (SHRI DINSHA J. PATEL): (a) India's production of natural gas is not adequate to meet its domestic requirement. The Report of the Working Group on Petroleum & Natural Gas for the Eleventh Plan has estimated a total demand of 179.17 Million Standard Cubic Metres Per Day (MMSCMD) for the year 2007-08. The gas availability for the year 2006-07 was about 96 MMSCMD, including about 23 MMSCMD of imported Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG).

(b) Gas production from many major fields, given to ONGC and OIL on nomination basis, has crossed its plateau and entered its declining phase. Commercial production from fields given under New Exploration Licensing Policy (NELP) is yet to reach a significant level.

(c) The Government of India has initiated various steps to augment gas supplies for the domestic market. These cover:—

(a) Intensification in domestic E&P activities;

(b) Exploitation of Coal Bed Methane (CBM) gas;

(c) Implementation of Natural Gas Hydrate Programme (NGHP) for evaluation of hydrate resources and their possible commercial exploitation;

(d) LNG Import; and

(e) Gas sourcing through transnational gas pipelines.
